THURSDAY, JAN. 3, 1914.

In another column of this issue appears a call issued from the meeting of Tobacco Growers at Lexington on Jan. 5, for a mass meeting of all the tobacco growers of the counties in the Harkey District to meet at their respective County seats on next Saturday. It will be a tobacco growers meeting and will be attended by the majority of the growers in the county. The question of a reduction of the 1911 crop will be discussed. The cut out proposition has been discussed by some people in the State but it is impracticable as people can not live one year and starve the next. However a reduction of the crop, at different making, if they agree, would raise less no doubt the price would be better, and if a reduction can be effected by legitimate means, by agreement of the growers, it would result in higher prices and more attention turned to stock raising which has been sadly neglected in the past few years.

The Democratic Committee for the 13th Senatorial District composed of Marion, Washington and Taylor met Thursday, January 8th at Lebanon, Kentucky, pursuant to a call of chairman, J. T. Arritt, of Marion county, who with Dr. G. V. Hiestand, of Taylor county and Joe Polin, of Washington county compose the Committee.

According to custom it is Taylor county's time to furnish the nominees, and both candidates, Dr. H. G. Saunders and Hon. Joe Wade each appeared before the Committee and asked that the matter be referred to the Democratic voters, of Taylor county, giving to the Taylor County Committee the right to determine the time and manner of their selection, whether by primary election or convention. After some discussion this was done. The candidates are worthy young men and each a life long Democrat. Either will make the party a good nominee and the people a worthy representative.

Hon. Ben Johnson and Senator McCreary held a joint debate at Shelbyville, January 6th, each answering charges made by the other. Mr. Johnson has challenged Senator McCreary to meet him in two joint debates between now and March 6th after the adjournment of Congress when he is willing to meet him every day if desired. The Republican Press of the State, judging from the partial manner in which the speaking was reported in their columns seems to be taking sides with McCreary. Strong evidence that they regard him as the weaker candidate.

The United States Circuit Court, in a decision handed down Tuesday, refused to permanently enjoin the Kentucky State Railroad Commission "from interfering with and dictating rates," and also refusing to declare the McChord railroad law of Kentucky invalid. The case will be appealed to the United States Supreme Court and meantime a temporary injunction holds good.

By unanimous vote the State Federation of Labor put itself on record in favor of suffrage for women and pledged itself to send a Working Committee to Frankfort at the next session of the Legislature to work for the enactment of such a law.

President Taft has ordered a public reprimand for Commander W. S. Sims, of the United States naval officer who at a recent dinner in London declared that America and Americans would assist Great Britain in case of war.

Judge John D. Works, "progressive," Republican, of Los Angeles, was elected United States Senator by the California Legislature. The eleven Democratic members of the Assembly voted for Works.

TRY THIS

TWO MINUTE CURE FOR COLD IN HEAD OR CHEST

It is curing Thousands Daily, and Saves Time and Money.

Get a bowl three quarters full of boiling water, and a towel.

Pour into the water a teaspoonful of HYOMEL (pronounced High-o-mel).

Put your head over the bowl and cover both head and bowl with towel.

Breathe the vapor that arises for two minutes, and presto! your head is as clear as a bell, and the tightness in the chest is gone.

Nothing like it to break up a heavy cold, cure sore throat, or drive away a cough. It's a pleasant cure. You'll enjoy breathing Hyomel. You'll feel at once its soothing, healing and beneficial effects as it passes over the inflamed and irritated membranes.

50 cents a bottle, at drug stores everywhere, ask Hay, Hay & Willett for extra bottle Hyomel Inhalant.

BLACK BOG OF KILBARROW

Gover in the County of Kilbarrow, Ireland; Dear to Those Who Know It.

The black bog of Kilbarrow, in the County Kilbarrow, lies five long miles from either railway or postoffice and is considered to be at the "back of beyond entirely."

There are three styles of dwellings in the black bog: the Boxer Magazine, houses, cottages and cabins. The houses are quaint, rambling buildings owned by the farmers and still hold to olden styles and ancient ways unmodified of the great modern note which is creeping through Ireland today.

The cottages belong to the government and are rented to laborers at a very low rate, while the cabins are simply relics of the old regime, just clay huts roofed with straw. There are very few of the latter standing in Ireland now.

The black bog is a dangerous place for nighty rambles, as it abounds in deep holes full of icy water. But some warm summer evening after sunset, when the white fogs are rising all around, go down there all who are city bred, and find out how good that spring and will tell to your cramped feet.

Try a short Marathon along those winding pathways, you who are weary of life's treadmill, and see if you do not get to feeling like a young colt just let loose in a clover pasture. On some misty day in October go down there among the brown heather and let the long, clean, wet winds blow the furrows from your forehead while the raindrops are pattering on the branches like the wee feet of the little themselves.

Always radiating always beautiful, even if it is at the "back of beyond," the charm of this old bog will twice itself round your heart with the long strong enough to draw you each to the wilds of Kilbarrow for evermore.

Maple Superstitions.

It would appear that some amount of superstition is associated with the maple in country folklore; somehow or other the bird has acquired a more or less sinister reputation.

This may be due to its sallow plumage or perhaps to its sallow plumage, which one often hears in the south, the appearance of one maple signifies, within two or three days, three forest a death and four a birth.—Agricultural Magazine.

HE SAW THE JOKE AT LAST

Stranger in Boston Who Had Read About Its Streets, Could Not Stop Laughing.

He was a middle-aged man, and he stood, with umbrella tucked under his arm, in front of the old Boston Public Library, chuckling away at the joke he had just thought of something.

"What are you chuckling about, my friend?" asked one of Boston's smartest.

"I'm chuckling at the man with the umbrella, blankly."

"I thought the case of your umbrella, blankly."

"I forgot this was Boston. I reckon you mean laughing, don't you? Well, I'm chuckling over a lot of funny things I read years ago in the comic papers about Boston's crooked streets. I had never been in Boston then, and I didn't know they were funny—the places, I mean. I struck Boston this morning for the first time, and as I wandered around in the rain trying to find my way somewhere, those old stories I read years ago came back to me with the force of a thunderbolt, and every time I strike a place where the streets seem a little more tangled up and twisted than usual, I have to stop and haha right out in spite of myself."

"Why, I declare, I actually can't tell half of the time which side of the street I'm on, just as it said in the newspaper. I used to read, and yet I never had any idea those stories were intended to be funny until I got here and began to seek around the Hub on my own account. Oh, I'm sure, all right, but I can see the joke when I have a diagram of it right in front of me."

"As the policeman moved on the middle-aged stranger with the umbrella was still standing there, chuckling softly to himself.—New York Times.

LIFE HAS BUT ONE PURPOSE

Instruction and Refinement of the One Who is Alive to Real Object to Be Attained.

Life can have but one purpose—the instruction and refinement of the one who is alive. This is true, because the soul's continuing adventure through shifting scenes and seasons, as adventures to which are incident every manner of lure, excitement and thrill. To have such an adventure or to die through it, either through misapprehension or cloth, brings us only a foolish misery which makes a mockery of the joy we ought to know. To halt the adventure and dive into it with many eagerness and hope, uncovers to our inquiring eye glory after glory, for those who seek it, and to those who knock the door of life's great room swings free.

The wise do not daily with life; they do not misinterpret it; they do not neglect it; they do not wish to throw it away. For its intrinsic worth they choose it above riches and make of it an art whose object, whose compensation, is itself. The thoughtful noble man himself is gray and this over their occupation in life, or their station in life, but the wise man chooses his own life with his great and station which he catagorizes rightly as incidents, not goals. "Fall well be happy, and no more thing—no jewel, trapping or other weighable possession—can spur or satisfy his spirit. Only the sheer wise of living can do that, so he makes his drink and stays by the mark.—Richard Whitley, in October Metropolitan.

ICE HEAVIER THAN WATER

Water Frozen Under Immense Pressure Produces Ice That Will Not Float.

All know that ordinary ice will float.
This relative lightness of ice with respect to water is due to expansion of the water at the moment of freezing.
If water is frozen under immense pressure, it seems that this expansion is prevented and ice heavier than water is produced.

G. Hansen has prepared this most strange, which he calls ice III, as follows: He compressed water to 3,000 kilograms (6,614 pounds) and cooled it to solid carbon dioxide snow and finally to liquid air. Under these conditions, a colorless, transparent ice is formed.
It is much denser than ordinary ice and heavier than water, consequently it sinks when placed in water. Ice III is very unstable, and on slight warming it melts and breaks up into a liquid white powder. The volume of the resulting powder is apparently four to eight times that of the original ice.
This powder formed by the breaking up of the dense form is nothing more than ordinary ice in the form of fine crystals, which, of course, on further warming melt at zero degrees centi-grade.

Experiments on ice III show that it is impossible to obtain it by separation from water at atmospheric pressure and that suddenly cooling. These would never be a possibility of this unstable form of solid water being formed in nature.—Sunday Magazine.

Tobacco Market

The tobacco market held up strong to the end of last week, and was steady. Tuesday however it was somewhat of a bidding was slow. However yesterday better prices were reported from the houses than before during the season.

The Planters House reports the sale of 83,000 pounds during the past week at good prices.
The market yesterday was from 14 to 2 cents better than it has been during the season, 18,000 pounds being sold at an average of 10.15. In the sales of that day was the crop of Mr. G. W.
Clark which averaged 16.30.
The crop of R. B. Edelen, of Taylor county of 4,935 which averaged 11.5, and the crop of Siggett & Russell, of Marion, county, which averaged 13 cents.

There is a surplus of supply and prices do not justify the expense of raising it. A proposition has been made to cut out the crop for 1911.

I do not think that can be done. Nor do I think it the wisest course. We remember the cutting out of the 1908 crop, who the independents reaped a rich harvest at the expense of those who cut out, and the disorders and outrages that prevailed in some parts of the state. No one wants to see a return of such times, when fear and anxiety took sleep from the eyes of many. Now my suggestion is the cutting out of cutting out a crop, which would be hard

CLERGYMEN IN QUEEN ROLES

Three Took Part in a Trust-Washing Competition and Another Got Prize for Not Doing.

At about and equally religious members of the most numerous organize in very amusing competition which they would scarcely dream of entering under any other auspices.

At a church house at Slough some little time ago great fun was considered by the appearance of a trio of reverend gentlemen in the role of washmen.

The time allowed for the washing was three minutes, on the expiration of which the dusters were submitted to the critical judgment of three unbiased ladies. But they found the dusters of two of the competitors so well washed that they could not decide which was the cleaner.

A somewhat similar clerical contest took place on the afternoon of a recent held in Manchester. In this instance the articles cleaned to be submitted were towels, and each competitor had not only to wash one, but also to dry, being allowed 15 minutes for the work.

Two years and three quarters took part in this competition, the way they "shaped" at the washbasin causing some of the lady spectators to chuckle at the sight.

The best was considered to be that which had been done by a regular washer, and accordingly had the hardihood to suggest that perhaps he had been taking lessons at home.

At a house arranged for the benefit of a Liverpool church a handkerchief washing competition took place between three clergymen of the town.
They were to do as much as they could in the limit of a quarter of an hour, and the prize, half a dozen choice pocket handkerchiefs, was to be awarded to the one who did the most beautiful of a presentable appearance.

Some of the reverend gentlemen proved quite as adept at the work for his hennings was not only by for the work of the new members is not so much as the most best competitor, and therefore carried off the prize. In the 15 minutes allowed he managed nearly one side of his handkerchief.

A Religious Movement.
"Buddhism," says a Berlin paper,
"is rapidly spreading in Europe."
number of converts is daily increasing, especially in Germany, England and Hungary.

thought, the Orient was bound, in these days of rapid travel and increased intellectual curiosity, to make itself known, and that the new religion of the growing class of small popular epitomes of various phases of eastern thought, and philosophic thought, and also translations of the great religious poems of the Orient.

On the continent, Vedantism, The-osophy and esoteric Buddhism have become fairly well known, and the teaching of the new members is not so much as the most best competitor, and therefore carried off the prize. In the
